Spanish Club Chooses Officers

Tuesday the newly formed Spanish Club had its second meeting in which officers for the semester were elected Fred Sims, president; Connie Crisostomo, vice-president; Berna Snyder, secretary; Verna Williams, representative. Miss Lindfors, the faculty sponsor, conducted the election.

The next meeting will be on Tuesday, November 18, at 12:15 at which time Senor Miranda of the Army Language School will speak on Mexico. Guests are invited and refreshments will be served in L 9.

Homecoming Queen Juanita Harris rides in state and is presented to the football audience by Wil Pokriots. See story on page 3.

Chorus Presents First Program

The voices of MPC chorus members were blended together last Friday morning in their first presentation of the fall semester, under the direction of Dr. Harvey Marshall.

Master of ceremonies for the event was Sam Salerno, aided and abetted by Johnny Adams. Aside from their comedy routine, Sam sang "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes" (with apologies to Jerome Kern) in his best Benzedrene Ben style.

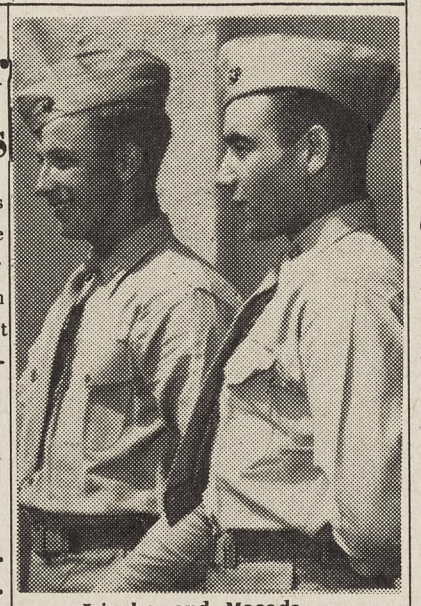

Five numbers were presented by the chorus, including: My Lord, What a Morning, The Riff Song, Heavenly Light, The Wedding Song of a Marionette, and Mr. Banjo.

After the performance, Dr. Marshall spoke to the students about the Hogans' contributions for choir robes. The program was concluded by a short talk from Mr. Hubbard, band director.

Marines Offer Opportunities

Kiwanis Concert A Triumph

Two bus loads of students were taken from school to the Soldier's Club at Fort Ord to listen to the famed Marine Band concert on October 17. Perhaps the only dark mark on the performance was that the loudspeaker was turned away from the balcony where the students were sitting, so that it was almost impossible for the conductor to be understook, but the music more than made up for that flaw.

Bramwell Smith, the young cornet soloist, was very well received playing "La Virgen De La Macerena," with an encore of the popular "Stardust." There were several humorous pieces played, along with various marches and semi-classical numbers. The show came to a successful ending with the playing of "Semper Fidelis" and the "Star Spangled Banner."

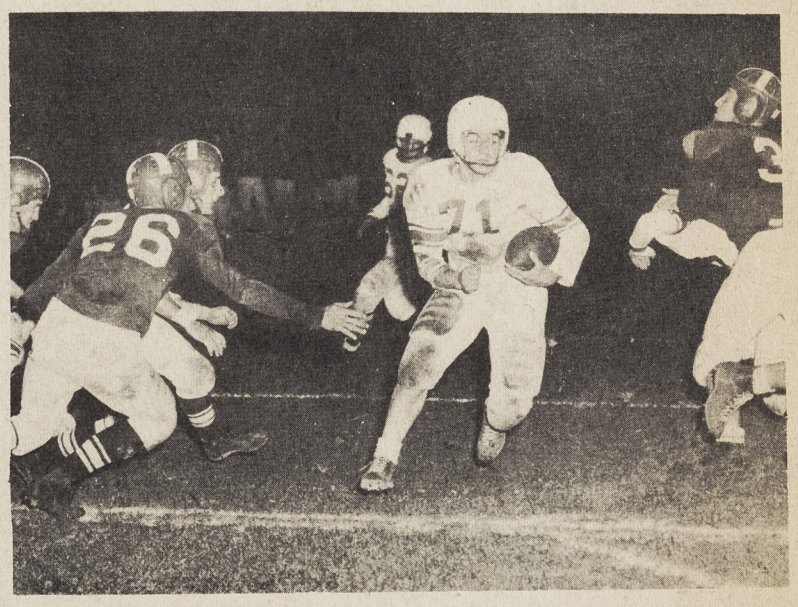

A percentage of the proceeds from the concert will go toward the purchase of band uniforms for the school.

There is still time to purchase memberships in the Seaside Concert series.

What About This Tidelands Oil?

by Barbara Elder

Who should control Tidelands Oil production, the state or the federal government? Controversy has raged unsettled since this question was first raised in 1937 by the late president, Franklin Roosevelt.

Tideland Oil is, to all intents and purposes, the oil which lies under the ocean floor between the areas of low mean tide and the three mile limit, in three states: California, Louisiana, and Texas.

The issue here to be discussed does not concern who should or should not own the Tidelands. In the Supreme Court decision of 1947 it was ruled that "The U.S. has paramount rights in all lands underlying the Pacific Ocean within three miles of the low tide mark on the California coast except for bays, harbors, and other inland waters." The decision of the court leaves no doubt that the Tidelands are owned, to all practical purposes, by the federal government.

The question then, is one of control. In my opinion, there are two measures by which to judge the problem. One is the legal side: That is, to extract from previous laws which may have bearing on the case, the legally correct solution. The other is a moral issue. It concerns the possibly extra-legal reasons for a particular course of action.

According to the Congressional digest for October, 1948, the theory of state Tideland control has been in effect since the days of the revolution. The colonists retained their original territorial concepts which included Tidelands as territory of "free and independent states."

The first test of supreme authority concerning Tidelands, occurred shortly after Alabama's admission to the Union, when two private claims were granted on one piece of land. One grant came from the federal government, the other from the state.

The court decision was in favor of the state. This confirmed the theory that the state owned submerged lands within its boundaries, except for private land or land retained by the U.S. as part of the public domain.

Between 1845 and 1937, the Supreme Court reiterated its stand at least 31 times.

On admission to the Union, California's state constitution specified boundaries as extending three miles into the Pacific Ocean.

In 1921, assuming from the previous decisions that they were state owned, the state began leasing the Tidelands.

However, belief of state control was not limited to the states. The federal government turned back all requests for leases as late as 1937, with instructions to consult state authorities.

Between 1937 and 1945, when a test case was initiated before the Supreme Court, the federal government was undecided on the question.

How the 1947 Supreme Court decision was reached, I am not sure. Apparently, it was found that the previous rulings had no direct bearing, since they did not concern oil from the tidelands, but dealt with other aspects of the situation.

As for the moral aspects of the case, both sides have quite definate views.

The state claims that, as far as maintenance is concerned, it has an organization with all the "kinks" out, working efficiently, whereas if the federal government took over it would have to begin from scratch.

Another of their arguments is that the Supreme Court decisions prior to 1947 are valid and should have been so considered when ownership was disputed.

They further point out that if the federal government could "take" the tidelands, nothing could prevent them from taking private property under the same circumstances.

Their final argument is that federal control of tidelands would upset a balance of power between the state and central governments.

I find myself in the odd position of being a resident of one of the warring states, and yet on the side of the federal government.

The main basis for my opinion is simple. I believe that the entire nation, rather than just three states, should benefit from the tidelands oil. In my estimation the only claim the states have on the tidelands is that they happen to lie off-shore from the states. I do not consider this a particularly valid excuse for control, since the oil in question is much more vital to the national welfare than to the state.

In spite of any ideas one might have on the correctness of the 1947 Supreme Court decision, it is the law. According to law, the federal government has paramount rights to the tidelands. Why, then, should it give up its legal right to the state? That action would not alter the actual ownership.

I believe the federal government could effect greater economy in oil production, even having to start from scratch. Historically, oil companies have preferred to deal with the state administrations, as they believed they could secure more profitable results.

However, it is also obvious that if the situation continues as it is now, it will be a long time before any agreement is reached.

Therefore, although I favor complete federal control, I would offer a compromise to the effect that a portion of the royalties go to the state government to be used for schools or other similar public services. The administration, that is, the allocation of leases and the protection of oil reserves, should be carried out by a selected group, including both state and federal employees. I realize a plan like this would be difficult to put into operation and would require a great deal of effort before it would be workable, but nevertheless, it would be an improvement over the deadlock now existing.

Contract Awarded

Lee Printers of Monterey has been awarded the contract of printing the 1952-1953 edition of El Paisano, MPC yearbook. The staff of the book has already started conferring with the printers and plans are well underway.

Cosmopolitan Corner

Winning the float competition was the major project of the International Club last week. Mavis Boyd, as float committee chairman, lost patience and voice, but not appetite as the whole club pitched in to turn out a winning float.

Among the students on the float were Margaret Siguenz, Kaca Granville, Connie Crisostomo, Dioscoro Canonigo, Maria Condesso, Mavis Boyd, Ramesh Patel, Naty Jusa, Sophie Dietrich, Peter Frobenius, Dody Schaefer, Leda Guarrera, Kil Soon Chae, Verne Fridley, Maureen Twilleger, Many of the foreign students had their own flags. Dan Adams and Gloria Luzzi represented America and stood in the center of the float holding the American flag, while students from the other countries sat at their feet. There were people from twelve nations.

Others who helped on the float, without participating in the parade, were Carol Stanley, Richard DuBrau, Dan Adams, and Jim Lostetter.

This week's major project was the potluck dinner held yesterday. Dioscoro Canonigo was chairman of the committee. The hall was decorated, in part, with pieces of the float. Each member brought food from his own country.

Dance Highlights Homecoming

by John Mortenson

A very successful homecoming week drew to a close Saturday night with a great game between the Lobos and the Menlo JC Oaks. Starting the first of last week with the selection of the queen candidates by the football team, activities began to snowball, leading up to a tremendous dance on Friday night. The campaigning for the office of queen got under way on Tuesday with Sylvia O'Neill, Pat Luch and Juanita Harris vieing for the position.

Caravan

On Wednesday night the first of the homecoming activities got under way. A long noisy caravan of MPC students with the band paraded through the streets of Monterey. Led by a police escort the spirited band of Loboites ended up at a bon-fire rally on the campus. The heat from the fire generated some great spirit and the whole evening was labeled a success.

Parade

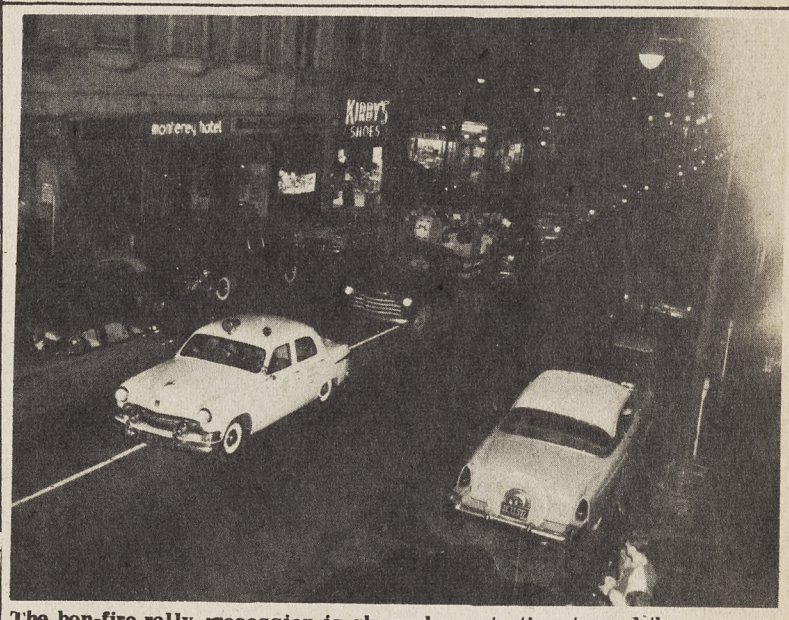

Thursday afternoon was the day of the big homecoming parade. Once again the local college tied up traffic on the main throroughfare of Monterey. Gaily colored floats of the various clubs on the campus took part, along with some ancient, self-powered, four-wheeled vehicles. Awards for the best float and car were given at a rally held in the Student Union Friday. Winner of the best float award was the newly organized "International Club." Best car award was given to the business club.

Dance

Friday night was the big night on campus. Some 60 couples, students and alums alike danced to the rythmn of Herb Miller's band. The high point of the evening came with the announcement of the queen. Juanita Harris was the popular choice of the student body election, and she, with her court, ruled for the rest of the evening. All agreed that it was one of the best of the MPC dances. The Circle K did a fine job in sponsoring, decorating and arranging the dance.

Saturday night was the culmination of the Homecoming week events. The Lobos entertained the Menlo Oaks in a hard fought rip-snorter, on the MPC greensward. Queen Juanita again presided over the game and was presented tothe fans at half time by Wil Pokriots who at the time was on the Lobo injury list (lucky guy).

The night ended with a pall of gloom hanging over the bright MPC crowd. The Lobos lost a close heartbreaker to the Oaks, 27-20. The whole week was a great success, however.

Hockey Games Postponed

The girls' hockey tournament has not been keeping up on its first planned schedule. So far, only two games have been played. Donna Douglas's team tied Alys Knight's 0–0. Margaret Harris's team defeated Elena O'jea's team. Because of the homecoming parade and weather conditions, many games have been postponed.

If everything goes as planned the rest of the games will be played at noon on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Allene Petty, as vice president of AWS, is in charge of the tournament and schedules the games and notifies the officials for each game.

One of the most popular places on the campus is the snack bar in the Student Union. Seen here enjoying coffee between classes are Oyar Kratins, Jim Love, Derrill Alexander, and Masakiyo Asami.

Mrs. Grey, head of the snack bar in the Student Union, is shown here dishing up a plate lunch for some hungry student.

Get Your Beanie At The Beanery

Mr. Saake showed us this picture of students of former years to prove his point about the wholesomeness of the food at the Student Union. All, or part, of the former students shown here are healthy employed, married, have children, are famous, well-educated, and/or wish they were back at MPC.

Second from right, sampling a cup of our famous java, is Dick Dormody, a recent campus visitor who reports he is about to enroll in medical school in Munster, Germany. In an unsolicited pre-medical testimonial Dormody states "If all the people in the world would eat in the Student Union, you'd need much larger quarters."

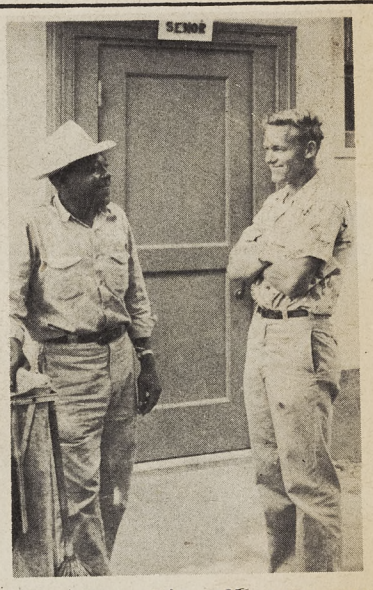

At the latest event in the Student Union we find Lobo Bill Daniels dancing with Queen Juanita Harris.

Musically Yours

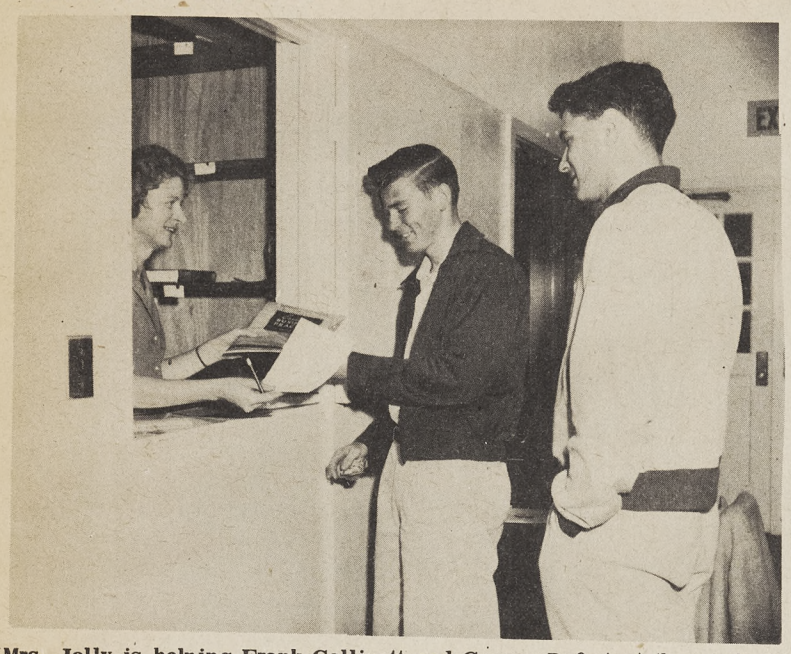

by Johnny Adams

Still holding down on all campi throughout the country are JO STAFFORD'S Capitol recordings of "YOU BELONG TO ME" in first place and "I WENT TO YOUR WEDDING" with Mercury's PATTIE PAGE in second. As for an up-and-comer this week, be sure to spin NAT KING COLE'S "FAITH CAN MOVE MOUNTAINS." Follow up with "COME A-LONG A-LOVE" by KAY STARR. Instrumentally, the big bash of BILLY MAY'S orchestra give us "FAT MAN MAMBO." On the flip side you'll find "ORCHIDS IN THE MOONLIGHT." Watch Miss GEORGIA CARR, STAN KENTON'S new discovery, as an up-and-coming torch singer. First side to hit most ears is a tune that was written especially for her called "SOFTLY." To those who like the team of LES PAUL AND MARY FORD here's good news. A new tune of theirs is due for release soon, "MY BABY'S COMING HOME."

And when it's all over you know who gets the job of cleaning up, Ray Parker says to Walter Williams.

Student Union

Mrs. Jolly is helping Frank Callicott and George Dufort at the student book store.

Charles Bennett is pictured buying supplies at the student store in the Union from Mr. Saake. You can buy your school supplies here every day from 12 to 1.

Mary Jane Menze and Margaret Fredrickson are pictured here serving up specials at lunch time. It might be said that the snack bar, at this time, is the most popular place on the campus.

What better place is there to study on the MPC campus than the Library? From the looks of this picture the answer could be the lounge in the Student Union. This is a very popular place for students to gather between classes.

Night Session On India

by Allene Knight

At the end of the lecture, the group inspects articles from India shown to them at the lecture.

Mr. Cope, of the night school, delivers his interesting facts on the subject of his talk, India.

The next program in the India. series will be held in the Student Union November 3.

A large and enthusiastic crowd attended the first of a series of lectures on India on Oct. 20. The discussion was about what kind of a place India is, what the people are like, and included an introduction to Hindu culture. Also, a film was shown titled "The Hindu Family."

The next of these series will be held this Monday night in the Student Union from 7:30 to 9:30. This lecture will cover the role the Indians will play in Asia, the political history, independence, the elections, language barrier, and education. Calvin Cope, Dean of the evening school here at the College, will show Kodacrome slides at this meeting.

Two other talks with movies are to be held on November 17 and December 1. They will cover India's food problem and her art, music, literature and religion.

Two of our students from India, Ramesh Patel and Nari Gazdar, assist in the discussion as the forum's resource persons.

Coach Jim Tidwell is caught by our shutter-bugs at the bon-fire rally as he boosts the spirit for the MPC-Menlo game.

Highlights Adult School

An interested audience listens as Mr. Calvin Cope talks on India in the Student Union.

Student Union Makes Slight Profit

A profit of $12.01 was made by the Student Union food department during the month of September, according to Mr. Thomas Saake, business manager.

Food sales totalled $1,568.29, while the cost of goods sold was $1,035.05, which left a gross profit of $533.24.

Expenses, including salaries, were $483.90, supplies, $27.92, and laundry, $9.40 totalled $521.24.

All of which goes to prove that service, and not profit, is the aim of the student store.

Cagey Cagers

With sweat streaming down their faces, about twenty boys drag themselves into the shower room at the Monterey High School gym every night about nine o'clock.

The Lobo cage coach Don Borden has been putting his boys through drills and practice on a fast break. Work is being done on both offensive and defensive plays.

Coach Borden welcomes the addition of Don Whaley who is effective at center and he likes the hustle and ball hawking of Don Minick. Speed is present at the guards with Larry Bruscas, Gerry Coleman, and Ben Rodriguez. Gary Chiles has been ill for a week, but is looking good.

Veterans Charles Shinaut and Pete Contino are being used at forward and guard to give the team bounce. Gerry Alexander appears to be a good prospect at forward and has a good shooting eye.

The schedule includes San Jose State Frosh twice and the Stanford Braves as a preliminary at Stanford Pavilion.

BEAT SHASTA

Under The Showers

by Mel Bowen

All of the Lobos next four football opponents are undefeated and three of them, Everett, Hartnell, and East Contra Costa are being seriously considered for the Little Rose Bowl game.

SHASTA: Up until press time Shasta Junior College had won four games and tied one, the tie being with Vallejo, 0-0. They have defeated Lassen (40-0), So. Oregon JV (40-13), Placer (45-6), and Reedley.

CONTRA COSTA EAST: Contra Costa has defeated Marin 47-7, Grant Tech 33-12, Vallejo 31-20, S.F. State JV 25-7, and Napa 32-0. Saturday they lost to Hartnell 19-0.

EVERETT, WASHINGTON: We have only one score from Washington and they defeated Centralia (57-7). It is known, because of the radio, that they are in contention for the Little Rose Bowl.

HARTNELL: The Panthers have thus far defeated Fresno (6-0), Placer (46-0), Porterville (39-13), and Riverside (26-12).

The Scoring Parade

Larry Segovia, with his fifteen points against Grant, took over the leadership. He has tallied forty-three points on five touchdowns and 13 conversions. Tom Enea has scored thirty-six points on six TDs, Fred Delgadillo eighteen, Dale Hill twelve, Terrill Moss, John Coniglio and Bill Goldman six each.

Lobos At Shasta Tonight

Menlo Downs MPC, 27 to 20

Merle Flattly intercepted a pass and raced seventy yards with fifty seconds remaining to be played in the final period to break a tie and give Menlo a 27-20 victory over the Lobos Saturday night.

Trailing 20-6 at the half, MPC put on a second half rally to tie the game in the fourth quarter. Tom Enea scored for the Lobos from fifteen yards out in the first quarter.

John Coniglio in the third and Larry Segovia in the final period tallied MPC's last two touchdowns. Segovia added the extra point after the Coniglio score and tied the game with a perfect kick after his score in the final period.

The day of the Hartnell game is approaching.

Tonight at Shasta the Monterey Peninsula College Lobos will try to spoil the unbeaten mark of the Knights. Shasta has defeated Lassen, Southern Oregon JVs, Placer, and Reedley. The only mar on their record for the season is a nothing to nothing tie with Vallejo.

Substitutions on defense will probably be John Coniglio at a halfback, Vince Ruiz at middle line-backer, and Vince Bevilacqua and Bill Cunningham at ends.

What's the Word? Beat Shasta!

Lobos Win Over Grant Tech, 21-7

Paced by Larry Segovia's fifteen points (2 touchdowns and 3 conversions) the MPC Lobos downed the Grant Tech Saracens of Sacramento, 21-7. The game was played October 18 before a crowd of approximately 2500.

Fred Delgadillo scored the other MPC touchdown in the final period. Bill Goldman had an eighty-five yard punt return called back on an offside penalty.

There will be a rooters bus to Contra Costa. Make your reservations now.

STUDENT TOURS to EUROPE 1953

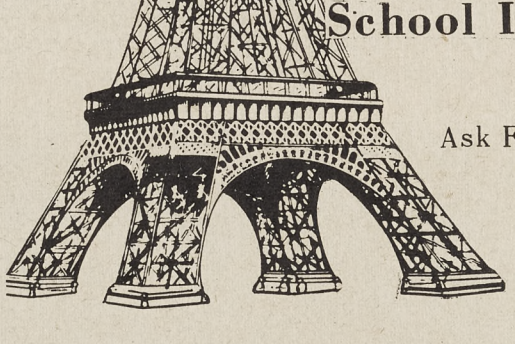

Why not organize a group of fellow students and take a budget tour to Europe in 1953? Such groups from schools all over the United States found that touring Europe was not only educational but a barrel of fun too. You'll visit all the romantic countries on the continent, and besides there is the added thrill of sailing in either of the "Queens" or the new "United States."

You may prefer to fly on the huge transatlantic planes of the various lines that this agency represents.
